ENC 1102 – ENGLISH COMPOSITION II
Syllabus
Florida Keys Community College

I. Course Information
Course Prefix/Number/Course: ENC 1102 (CRN # 30122)
Credit Hours: 3 credits
Prerequisites for the course: English Composition I

II. Course Method
Reading literature helps us better understand ourselves and the world. During this course, we will examine through literature how others cope with problems and deal with conflicts. Readings will include essays, poetry, short stories, and plays. We will read, discuss the literature, respond in journal form, and write literary essays in order to understand the literature as thoroughly as possible and develop analytical skills.
This course is an interactive one focusing on student participation, as opposed to a traditional lecture-dominated structure.

III. Instructor Information
Instructor: Greg Charleston
Email: greg5637@aol.com; gregory.charleston@fkcc.edu
Office Hours: Tuesdays and Thursdays,
1:00 p.m. to 2:00 p.m., and 3:30 to 6:30 p.m.

IV. Course Description
Expository writing based upon the close reading and study of selected examples from fiction, poetry, and drama. The course emphasizes oral and written analytical interpretations which include recognition of the traditional techniques, forms, and rhetorical devices used by writers of literature. The course also serves as an introduction to literature. Includes a 6,000 word writing requirement.

V. College-level Competencies
Florida Keys Community College graduates who complete the core curriculum possess the knowledge, skills and values associated with college-educated individuals. Our graduates demonstrate mastery of competencies integrated within the academic disciplines, such as the ability to effectively communicate, seek creative solutions to problems, exhibit cultural awareness, and command basic technological skills.

Upon completion of this course, the student will be able to:
1.) Integration of Skills – Integrate skills learned in English Composition I by organizing materials to create cohesive units of discourse suitable to the purpose and the audience.
2.) Communication -- Further develop individual styles of thinking, speaking, and writing to demonstrate critical analysis and effectively communicate original ideas in written and oral discourse.

3.) Critical Thinking and Analysis – Analyze various literary forms in order to further examine human experiences and relate these and other literary themes to global issues.

4.) Technology – Locate and evaluate primary and secondary sources and incorporate the relevant information into a research paper documented internally and bibliographically by using MLA guidelines.

5.) Diversity – Interpret and evaluate societal and ethical issues, problems, and values, particularly through the literature of diverse authors and subjects

Students will be able to organize material, to write fluid prose, to use specific detail, to create a cohesive composition, to be aware of audience, and to master minimum standard usage skills. Students are expected to demonstrate a firm understanding of Standard English usage including: spelling, grammar, punctuation, correct diction and the ability to write in third person Point of View. In addition, students are expected to be familiar and use standard software like Microsoft Word, and be able to paginate, format papers, use spell check and create headers and footers.

VI. Course Calendar

The professor reserves the right to change the calendar to meet the needs of the course and the students. It is the students' responsibility to adjust their calendars when necessary.

This is a general week-by-week outline of the students' activities of the class for a regular 15-week semester. A week-by-week list of assignments will be handed out several times during the semester (and modified for a 6- or 12-week summer term).

Student evaluations for this course will be based on the following percentages:

Four Assigned Essays = 40% (10% for each essay)
Final Research Essay = 20%
Journal = 10%
Final Exam = 10%
Quizzes, Exercises = 5%
Attendance and Participation = 15%

This system of percentages is an approximation only so students will know where they stand.

Grades on individual papers will be determined on the basis of:
  Organization — thesis statement and supporting ideas
  Development — specific support of topic sentences with examples, statistics, research studies, expert testimony, surveys and case studies
  Mechanics and format — Standard English usage and MLA format and documentation

Essays will be assigned on a regular basis. These essays will cover a variety of topics including critical analysis of assigned reading, narrative structure, academic thesis, opinion pieces and samples of prose, poetry and drama.

Daily assignments will include writing in a journal during class on assigned topics and free writing. Class will receive 10-15 minutes of time for journal writing. Journals will be read and evaluated on an ongoing basis. Please keep a journal dedicated for ENG COMP II. Journals will be collected and evaluated on an ongoing basis.

Quizzes will be given on readings and discussions. A final exam will be given.

A final research paper will be required. This paper must include citations, (minimum of five); must adhere to MLA standards, be properly formatted and error free.

Readings will be assigned from the text books and handouts. Students will be asked to discuss readings, comment in their journals about the readings and will be tested on assigned readings.
VII. Course Materials

Required Text(s)/Materials:

Students should have a good collegiate dictionary and a journal dedicated to writing for this class.

VIII. Course Grading Scale

The following grade scale will apply to this class:
90% - 100% = A
80% - 89% = B
70% - 79% = C
60% - 69% = D
Below 59% = F

IX. Class Policies

Attendance
Students are expected to attend all scheduled classes. Participation and writing are affected by attendance. Arranging to make up work missed because of legitimate absence is the responsibility of the student. No make up work will be permitted for any absence in which prior arrangements have not been made or for which acceptable written documentation is not provided. There will be no exceptions.

All assignments are due on time. Any deviation from this policy requires prior arrangements made in writing between the student and the instructor. Any assignment turned in late will receive a deduction for up to three days, after which the assignment will not be accepted and a grade of zero will be assigned. There will be no exceptions.

If you wish to drop, you must do it. See the Office of Records and Registration. Students who do not drop will be assigned a letter grade (possibly an “F”) by the instructor. Instructors are not allowed to change the academic status of a student, i.e., award a grade of "W" or “X” on the final roster. It is the student’s responsibility to withdraw or change registration status by the published deadlines.

Writing Journal
The writing journal will consist of written responses to topics students will write about during class or assignments for homework. Journal entries should be written using blue or black ink, and handwriting must be legible.
Writing journal entries must have the appropriate heading and be numbered sequentially, beginning with journal entry #1. If students are not in class for the assigned journal entry, they must leave space in the writing journal so that it can be entered later. The student’s name must be printed legibly in the space provided on the front cover of the notebook. Journal entries will not so much be graded for correct grammar or spelling (although correct grammar and spelling are highly encouraged) but students are expected to write thoughtful, complete responses to the prompts or topics assigned, usually connected in some way to the course material. The length of responses will vary. Some journal entries will be assignments to gather information, some to complete exercises and some to express opinions or to answer discussion questions. Only journal entries are to be kept in this notebook. Do not doodle on the cover or inside the notebook. This is distracting to the reader of the journal and represents the writer in a poor light. Points will be deducted for sloppy-looking journals.

Delays in Getting the Textbook
Having regular access to the textbook is a requirement for this class. Whenever possible students should have the text in hand before the first day of class each semester, but there will be times that students are unable to get the text until after the class begins. If you are in this situation, follow the guidelines below. These guidelines are intended to be general enough to apply to all classes you take, and they may not all apply to this class. Not having the text is not an acceptable excuse for doing no work in this class.

1. The FKCC library has reserve copies of the textbook available for student use. These textbook copies cannot be removed from the library.
2. Some of the literature selections we are reading are available on-line. Check the web first to see if the selection is available.
3. Look at the publisher’s web site for the text. Most publisher text sites have student resources that can help you, and many of these are available even if you do not have the text. As a minimum, the web sites usually have a Table of Contents, which can also help you get an idea what topics we will cover.
4. Please let me know if you don’t have the text by the end of the first week of class. I will not be sympathetic if you wait until after the first week of the semester to tell me you don’t have the text.

The above guidelines will not be enough to replace the text entirely, but they will allow you to learn enough to participate in the discussion forums each week. This participation is critical to your grade and also for attendance purposes.

MLA Format
All student assignments to be turned in to the professor must be typed, using MLA format. There are no exceptions. Examples are located in the text A Writer's Reference, pp 355-412, as well as in Backpack Literature.

Rules for Academic Writing
The following rules apply to all assigned essays in this class and should apply to college level writing in general, unless students are otherwise instructed.

- All essays must be word-processed in MLA format.
- Avoid the use of the first person reference (I, me, we, us, our, etc.) unless the assignment calls for a personal narrative.
- Avoid the use of the second person reference (you, your, imperative sentences with the word “you” understood.
- Do not use contractions such as I’ve or they’re, etc. Instead use I have or they are.
- Do not use conversational or unconventional language.

Conversationational: words or phrases that dictionaries label informal, slang, or colloquial; although often used in informal speech and writing, not generally appropriate for formal writing assignments.
Unconventional: words or phrases not generally considered appropriate in academic or professional writing and often labeled nonstandard in dictionaries; best avoided in formal contexts.

- Do not use abbreviations.

How Much Study Time You Should Expect To Devote To This Course
Most educators recommend that students spend 1-2 hours outside of class studying and completing assignments for every hour spent in class. For a typical 3 credit hour class, this translates into a total of 6-9 hours every week per course. You should expect to spend a total of 6-9 hours each week studying and completing assignments for each course you take. There are reading and writing assignments due for every single class meeting.

Class Policies

Common courtesy and respect for others is expected at all times.

- Turn off your cell phone before you come to class. All cell phones should be put away during class. No cell phones should be placed on the desk top.

- Do not send or receive text messages during class. If you are caught sending text messages, you will be warned and the next time you will be asked to leave the class.

- Do not use your computer in class unless you are actually using it to take notes or for a legitimate class project.

- If you have an excused absence from class, you must get the assignments you need to make up. You must schedule a make-up time if you missed a test or quiz. It is your responsibility to get make-up work. If you missed handouts because you were absent, it is your responsibility to get them so that you can finish your work on time.

- If you are absent for a major test or essay due date, you must have a doctor’s note to excuse your absence, otherwise you will not receive credit.

- No disrespect will be tolerated in class—whether it is student to student or student to teacher disrespect. If this occurs, you will be asked to leave the class. Never talk in class when someone else is speaking.

- Do not be late for class. Attendance will be taken at each class. Chronic tardiness and/or leaving class early will impact your attendance grade. If you are more than 10 minutes late for class, credit for attendance will not be given. Do not schedule regular doctor or dentist appointments during class time. Do not schedule vacations during class time.

- Do not walk in and out of the room during class time unless there is an emergency (they don’t happen very often).

- Students are expected to be prepared for class, to have books, pens and writing journals at every class, to have read the materials assigned, and completed any homework.

- Students should not start packing bags early, putting books away or rustling papers while class is still in session—this is not fair to students who are trying to listen and receive any last minute instructions.
• If you have a problem, try to work it out after class with the professor—not during class. This is always the first step in problem solving.

Plagiarism:
Any form of academic dishonesty will result in a zero grade for the test/paper/project. This includes cheating on exams and plagiarism.

According to the Merriam-Webster Online Dictionary, to "plagiarize" means to steal and pass off (the ideas or words of another) as one's own to use (another's production) without crediting the source to commit literary theft to present as new and original an idea or product derived from an existing source. In other words, plagiarism is an act of fraud. It involves both stealing someone else's work and lying about it afterward.

All of the following are considered plagiarism:
• turning in someone else's work as your own
• copying words or ideas from someone else without giving credit
• failing to put a quotation in quotation marks
• giving incorrect information about the source of a quotation
• changing words but copying the sentence structure of a source without giving credit
• copying so many words or ideas from a source that it makes up the majority of your work, whether you give credit or not (see our section on "fair use" rules)

Most cases of plagiarism can be avoided, however, by citing sources. Simply acknowledging that certain material has been borrowed, and providing your audience with the information necessary to find that source, is usually enough to prevent plagiarism. See the section on citation for more information on how to cite sources properly.

(from the website: http://www.plagiarism.org/learning_center/what_is_plagiarism.html)

Specific class assignments will be distributed on a regular basis. Test dates will be announced ahead of time. Quizzes are generally not announced beforehand. Writing journals will be collected twice during the semester for grading. It is imperative to bring journals to every class and keep them up to date.

Sexual Predators
Federal and State law requires a person designated as a “sexual predator or offender” to register with the Florida Department of Law Enforcement (FDLE). The FDLE then is required to notify the local law enforcement agency where the registrant resides, attends or is employed by an institution of higher learning. Information regarding sexual predators or offenders attending or employed by an institution of higher learning may be obtained from the local law enforcement agency with jurisdiction for the particular campus, by calling the FDLE hotline (1-888-FL-PREDATOR) or (1-888-357-7332), or by visiting the FDLE website at www.fdle.state.fl.us/sexual_predators. If there are questions or concerns regarding personal safety, please contact the Campus Security Officer on your campus.

Special Needs
If you have any special needs or requirements pertaining to this course, please discuss them with the instructor early in the term. If you have special needs as addressed by the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) and need assistance, please notify the Office for Students with Disabilities at 305-809-3504 via email at: joanne.dinkel@fkcc.edu or the course instructor immediately. Reasonable efforts will be made to accommodate your special needs.
